CUSTODIAN
DATA PROTECTION

If data is the new currency for the modern enterprise
Don't gamble with its protection

Data remains the lifeblood of all organisations; every second data is transported through a myriad of networks to provide businesses and individuals with access to information across the globe. To the modern business, data is the crucial element that carries information to those business functions that consume it and as an organisation's most valuable asset; it is imperative that your data remains accessible, manageable and protected at all times.

Data Custodian is modular portfolio of data protection and storage management solutions, providing secure data optimisation and proactive backup strategies for organisations across all vertical markets and public sector bodies.

At Celerity our established delivery vehicles span all aspects of data protection and storage management including support, managed services, public and private clouds, on and off premise solutions in addition to secure and technically robust managed backup services.

We have a wealth of experience managing, monitoring, supporting and optimising critical enterprise infrastructures for government, defence, aviation, health, finance and commercial clients globally which means that regardless of your industry we have the expertise that you need.
